New Farm Board Head
Reveals That Nearly All Federal Wheat Has Been Sold.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—A movement to reopen farm commodity markets was begun today by Henry Morgenthau Jr., new chairman of the farm board, who called heads of grain exchanges together for a conference Wednesday morning.

Later, if efforts to set grain markets functioning prove successful, they will be extended to reopening live stock exchange; and other farm marts which have been forced to close because of the national banking holiday.

Meanwhile the bureau of agricultural economics reported that a swift increase in prices of raw materials for food appeared to have begun with the sources of supplies cut down by the closing of the markets. Generally, storage supplies are low because of the recent instability of farm prices, and in the case of perishables there is virtually no storage possible.

Heads of grain exchanges at Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City were invited to meet with Morgenthau, who said he has obtained a large number of telegrams from millers appealing for an early resumption of marketing. Millers said they are unable to sell flour because closing of the markets prohibits their customary practice of hedging sales of flour against purchases of wheat.

Morgenthau announced at the same time that the Grain Stabilization Corporation, through which the board attempted to "peg" the price of wheat, disposed of its last holdings of cash wheat during the past week, about 1,200,000 bushels. It still owns 30,301,000 bushels of futures, mostly contracts for May delivery.

When the futures are "off" of the stabilization corporation will be permitted "to die," Morgenthau said. The last of the cotton held by the farm board when it sought to stabilize cotton prices is being transferred from time to time to the Red Cross under an act of congress. Morgenthau said that he believed the board would "be out of cotton in a few weeks."

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—Preliminary steps to put the nation's grain business quickly back on a normal basis were taken today, with Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Washington co-operating.

At the instance of Henry Morgenthau, the newly appointed chairman of the federal farm board, a delegation headed by Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, went to Washington this afternoon for a conference tomorrow in regard to re-

Job Offer Follows Successful Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—(AP)—Twenty minutes after Albert G. Duckwitz, 49, killed himself because, a note said, he could not find work, a friend called at his hotel to offer him a job. Duckwitz had shot himself after taking poison.

Duckwitz was a member of a Buffalo, N. Y., family, newspaper clipping found among his effects indicated.

RUSSIA DECLINES TO ENTER PARLEY IN EASTERN CRISIS

Refusal Cites Lack of Diplomatic Relations
With 13 of 22 Powers in Consultative Group.

MOSCOW, March 7.—(AP)—The soviet government tonight refused to participate in the League of Nations' consultative commission in the Sino-Japanese conflict because of what was termed the "hostility" of the majority of the participants toward the soviet union.

Without mentioning the United States by name, but obviously referring to the absence of diplomatic relations with Washington, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff declared in a note to the League that it was impossible "for the moment to join in decisions of the League when 13 out of the 22 participants in the consultative commission maintain no relations with the U. S. S. R. and therefore are hostile to it."

"Obviously," the note continued, "such a committee hardly would be able to coordinate its actions with the soviet union, since the latter has no possibility of negotiating with a majority of the members, and separately with each of them whose interests coincide greatly with our own."

Stressing the Moscow government's policy of neutrality in the present conflict, the note continued: "The soviet government always will support the actions and suggestions of international bodies and separate governments aiming to solve the conflict and to safeguard peace in the far east."

Reed Loses Fight Against Insurgents

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, in his new capacity as chairman of the republican committee on committees, met with another setback today in his attempt to discipline the independent republicans who supported President Roosevelt in the campaign.

Reed refused from forcing the issue at republican caucus earlier in the day when he realized he was in a hopeless minority.

Later, as newly appointed head of the committee to assign committee places for the new congress, Reed suggested again the independents be considered committee places, but considerable opposition arose and the four were given their usual seniority rankings.

The independents involved are Cutting, of New Mexico; Norris, of Nebraska; La Follette, of Wisconsin, and Johnson, of California.

Reed said most of the other members of the committee of nine "had the feeling these men (independents) were to be called republicans."

"I felt," the Pennsylvania added, "they should be judged by their acts and not by the words. I took my lie."

BILLS TO RESTRICT WEIGHT OF TRUCKS HEARD IN SENATE

Avalanche of Amendments Proposed; Debate Begins Today; Appropriations Taken Up.

Legislation restricting weight, dimensions and operation of motor vehicles on Georgia highways was called up in the senate Tuesday afternoon for passage, only to meet with an avalanche of amendments and substitutes, the reading of which occupied the entire afternoon session. Debate will begin this morning.

Following adjournment of the senate for the day, the appropriations committee of that body took up the house bill carrying general appropriations for 1933 and 1934. Senator Walter A. Sims, chairman, said that committee consideration of the bill probably will require several days.

The senate adopted a bill by Dr. Charles Howard, of Cusseta, amending the constitution so as to authorize the general assembly to exempt from taxation for state purposes the houses and lands occupied by owners. A substitute bill which was adopted fixes the limit of exemption at $1,600.

To Reconsider Court Bills.

Motions to reconsider actions defeating bills allowing amendment of indictment and providing for joint trial of defendants jointly indicted, prevailed and the bills were carried to the foot of the senate calendar. A proposed constitutional amendment limiting counties to 10 mills taxation was lost.

Consolidation of Atlanta and Fulton county by the legislature would be authorized under a constitutional amendment approved Tuesday by the senate committee on constitutional amendments. The bill would exempt from the consolidation that part of Atlanta lying in DeKalb county, but would allow municipal services to be continued to that part of the present city by payment of taxes to the new political subdivision.

Municipal government committees of the senate approved house bills cutting the term of the mayor of Atlanta from four to two years, to take effect at the end of the present mayor's term, and creating a budget commission for the city of Atlanta. The committee also approved a bill authorizing Atlanta to set up an absentee voting system.

Joint Speaking Approved.
General judiciary committee No. 2 of the senate approved a bill requiring all candidates of political parties to speak from the same platform in state senatorial districts when running for local offices. The committee also approved a senate bill establishing a delinquent tax commissioner.

Constitutional amendments committee of the senate approved a bill allowing suit to be filed in the county where an automobile accident happens.

The house passed a number of bills during its two sessions of Tuesday, the most important of them being one by Representative William B. Harrisfield, of Fulton county, which would enact state laws on federal regulations governing airplanes and airports. The measure was approved by a 120 to 3 vote.

The other bills adopted were local measures.

The house passed a resolution by Robinson, of Thomas, and Stokes, of Sumter, calling on the secretary of state to furnish information on all

'Questioners' To Face Charge of Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—The wife of a man who died at a hospital yesterday after questioning today would ask for a warrant charging his questioners with murder.

Lloyd Lowe, 30, a bandit suspect, died at the City hospital three hours after he was questioned by Detective Sergeants W. J. Raney and Floyd Wiebenga about a series of robberies.

Mrs. Lowe said today that her husband had been beaten and that she would ask for a magistrate's warrant charging murder on the grand jury can look into this case. She said she would take this action after the funeral and the official investigation are over.

Six Suspects Are Indicted In Kidnaping of Boettcher

DENVER, March 7.—(AP)—Federal charges of kidnaping were filed against six suspects in the Charles Boettcher kidnaping in the United States district court here late today.

The charges were filed by United States District Attorney Ralph L. Carr against Carl W. Pearce, 30; Arthur Youngberg, 37; Gordon Elliott, 33; Mrs. Ruth Kohler, 30; Verne Sankey, 41, and Mrs. Verne Sankey, 40.

Three of those named in the charges are held in jail here as the result of an investigation which terminated today in the announcement by Chief of Police Albert T. Clark that the hideout of the kidnap gang, an isolated ranch house, had been discov-

3 Banks Issue Statement On Reopening Plans Today

The clearing house banks of Atlanta Tuesday issued the following statement on opening the banks today for limited business purposes and the plans for issuance of scrip:

TO THE PUBLIC:
The undersigned banks comprising the Atlanta Clearing House Association make the following announcement concerning banking procedure under the national holiday:

(1) Our banks will open at 9 o'clock a. m. Wednesday (March 8) for the following purposes only:

a—To open new accounts under the special trust fund provisions of the proclamation of the president. Only cash can be used to open such accounts and withdrawals must be made in person in cash against the personal receipt of each depositor. In accordance with the proclamation of the president the total amount of such deposits will be kept in cash, payable on demand.

b—Wholesale or retail dealers in food stuffs will, upon proper application, be permitted to pay drafts or other documents in connection with the shipment, transportation or delivery of food or feed stuffs in such manner as may be absolutely necessary.

c—The Atlanta clearing house change depot which has been in operation at 22 Marietta street (corner Broad and Marietta streets) continued in operation through Tuesday. It will be discontinued Wednesday morning and change will be furnished by each bank and its branches, such change being limited to currency of not more than $20 denominations, as heretofore.

d—Safe deposit departments will be opened during the usual hours.

(2) We have requested the secretary of the treasury to authorize the Atlanta Clearing House Association to issue clearing house certificates. The certificates are in course of preparation. The task of preparation is an enormous one, as it can be completed plans will be made to issue such certificates against customers' present balances. The basis of withdrawals will be announced later.

This announcement is made to the public in order that they may be fully acquainted with the strenuous efforts which the members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association are making to relieve the public of inconvenience and to restore banking procedure to as nearly normal basis as possible at the earliest moment.

COUNTY UNIT VOTE ON DRY LAW ASKED ON DEPOSITS SEEN

Committee Recommendation Follows View of Ministers at Hearing.

A charge that 90 per cent of the members of the legislature and of the people of Georgia "take a drink" was heard Tuesday night at a senate committee hearing on a proposal to call a convention to vote on the eighteenth amendment.

The committee followed the view of ministers and other advocates of the eighteenth amendment and recommended passage of a bill providing for selection of delegates to the repeal convention on the county unit plan, instead of on the vote of the state at large.

Senator Knox, of Halden, chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections, was one of the sponsors of a plan to select delegates to the repeal convention on the basis of the state-wide vote, but the committee rejected this bill and adopted a substitute offered by Senator H. E. Rivers, of Glenwood.

Senator John Lewis, of Sparta, said that "if those who drink there won't vote, they won't vote." He said the eighteenth amendment in Georgia, "Ninety per cent of the members of the senate and the house take a drink, as do 90 per cent of the people of Georgia," said Senator Lewis.

Senator James Boykin, of Lincoln, said afterward that "as a member of the senate, I think the senator is mistaken."

Rev. W. H. Faust, pastor of the Gordon Street Baptist church, asked

Rebel Bands Afield In 3 Cuban Areas

HAVANA, Cuba, March 7.—(AP)—Semi-official sources today confirmed reports from the interior that small bands of rebels have taken to the field in at least three provinces—Santa Clara, Camaguey and Oriente.

The belief was expressed, however, that the groups, described as numerically weak and isolated, were without central leadership.

Constitution's Cooking School To Open, Miss Andree in Charge

The Constitution cooking school, often the most favored. Neither is it necessary to devote long and laborious hours to a meal preparation. Her recipes will bear this out, and will show many a grateful housewife how to plan meals that will save time and effort, as well as money, and yet give sufficient variety to satisfy the most exacting family. Some of the recipes will be entirely new, some of them the favorite old dishes, combined in new and colorful fashion, or served in an enticing way, that makes a one-time humble dish a thing of beauty and romance.

Every woman interested in her home will plan to attend these lectures. For those who have tired of home work, because it holds nothing new or change or thrill, there will be much to stimulate fresh activities and renewed joy in the daily task.

The wise housewife will come prepared with pad and pencil, ready to jot down the timely suggestions, the little hints, the wise counsel about foods and appliances which will be so generously given. She also will plan her time about so as to be in nothing interfere with the four cooking school sessions.

The school dates are March 14, 15, 16 and 17. Doors will open at 8:30 a. m., and the program starts promptly at 9 o'clock each morning.

BANKS OF ATLANTA TO REOPEN TODAY ON LIMITED BASIS

Authority Sought To Issue Scrip at Once; Talmadge Asks Cotton
Holiday for 1934.

As Atlanta banks prepared to re-open today on a limited service basis and made a formal application to Washington for authority to issue scrip, Governor Eugene Talmadge Tuesday went before the legislature meeting in joint session, and asked that a cotton holiday be declared in 1934 and that no additional bank legislation be passed at this session.

The three major Atlanta banks issued a joint statement revealing the plans for limited service they will render throughout the present crisis as other cities in Georgia moved to alleviate their condition by the issuance of similar scrip.

Scrip had been printed Tuesday night and will be moved to the bank vaults and put into circulation just as soon as the authority for its issuance is received from Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, in control of all financial institutions by proclamation of President Roosevelt.

State Clearing House Voted.
The Country Bankers Association of Georgia voted early Wednesday for the creation of a state clearing house for issuing scrip under the supervision of the state superintendent of banks.

The association also requested Governor Eugene Talmadge to extend the holiday in Georgia for both state and national banks and expressed favor for the passage of legislation guaranteeing deposits in state banks if congress takes action to secure deposits in national banks.

Voting of the association, about 250 members of which were present, took place after midnight following a night of discussion as to how banks should overcome the financial crisis. The proposal was in the form of a resolution that also would provide for the president of the association to name a committee of five to select members of the clearing house and provide terms of membership.

The resolution also proposed "legislation be enacted at once for vesting in the superintendent of banks complete power and authority to provide for limited opening of banks."

Proposal Is Indorsed.
Governor Talmadge, Superintendent of Banks R. E. Gurneely and Speaker Ed Rivers, of the house, indorsed the proposal for a state clearing house, they said today.

The governor said "if the banks need a day or two longer of the holiday we'll try to arrange it."

Regarding withdrawals from banks he said some provision must be worked out so that the system of state banks withdrawing from correspondent banks and withdrawal of individual deposits be uniform.

"I'm not going to let an inconsistency be worked in Georgia," he said.

Gurneely proposed that all state banks be eligible to membership in the clearing house and that they be permitted to receive clearing house scrip.

Urges Cotton Holiday.

Governor Talmadge, hurrying before his house and senate three hours after his return from Washington, where on Monday he attended a governor's conference with the president, said that no new bank legislation was needed, but urged that Georgia take the lead in declaring a cotton holiday for 1934 as a means of restoring prosperity to the section.

The governor lauded the plan of issuance of scrip and added that he believed the scrip would bring about a needed inflation of the currency and go far toward restoring normal conditions at least temporarily.

"We have laws enough in Georgia now to protect bank depositors from executive told the legislature. "This is no time for additional bank

U. S. Marine Recruits Must Be 2 Inches Taller

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—New fighting marines must be two inches taller.

Marine corps headquarters in announcing today that recruiting is to begin immediately in 14 cities specified that the stature requirements would be 65 instead of 66 inches as formerly.

To bring the corps strength to 15,343, about 500 men are to be taken on during March.

HOARDERS' NAMES MAY BE REVEALED TO LESSEN EVIL

Progressive Tax on Sequestered Gold Also Discussed in New York
Banking Circles.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Publication of the names of the principal gold hoarders in the United States was discussed in New York banking circles today as one means of lifting the present so-called "midas moratorium."

It is known that since 1915 the federal reserve bank here has been recording the names of persons who withdrew gold in any sizable amounts. In some quarters it has been suggested that a progressive tax on sequestered gold be imposed. The talk in the Wall Street sector today, however, apparently favored publicity as the weapon which probably would be most effective in whipping the yellow doublets out of their unnatural idleness.

For the procedure, it was thought, might necessitate a special resolution by congress authorizing the publication of the names of those who, on a certain future date, were known by the federal reserve system to possess gold coin or bullion exceeding, say, $15,000 or $20,000. Firms using the metal for manufacturing, the arts or other legitimate purposes would be excluded from the exposure. By putting the publication of names a few weeks ahead, it was theorized that the majority of hoarders, rather than have their "delinquency" paraded before the world, might return the metal to the vaults of the treasury and accept currency or government bonds in payment.

The report of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, published last Friday, showed there had been gold withdrawals of some $228,000,000 during the week. Of this amount $110,000,000 was for foreign account while $118,000,000 went into domestic distribution. Just how much additional gold coin and bullion was paid out on Friday alone, the day preceding the declaration of the banking holiday, the reserve organizations has not made known. It is understood, however, that literally millions more were taken out.

Most of the gold withdrawn by American citizens, it is said, was placed in private vaults or in safe deposit boxes. Until the proclamation of President Roosevelt these withdrawals were perfectly legal and nothing could be done about it one way or another.

Although bankers and federal reserve officials have refused to discuss the names of the principal holders of gold, it is said that among the men who have been quietly sequestering large quantities of the precious metal in some instances amounting to several million dollars—are figures of considerable prominence.

On March 1, 1933, the gold reserves of the federal reserve system totaled $2,892,053,000, while only a few weeks earlier the reserves aggregated $3,118,393,000. The gold ratio of the New York Federal Reserve bank on March 1 last, was down to 45.8, and by the following Friday some bankers were of the opinion this ratio had dropped below 40.

Atlanta Court Order Halts Foreclosure

The first legal halting of mortgage foreclosures under the provisions of provided by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the proclamation of President Roosevelt in declaring a bank moratorium was obtained in Fulton superior court Tuesday when two Baltimore merchants were enjoined from foreclosing on a mortgage against C. W. Jones, a Spanish War veteran.

Virlyn B. Moore signed a temporary injunction against the Arundel Mortgage Company and the Union Trust Company preventing foreclosure on property owned by Jones located at Boulevard and Eighth street. J. Ira Harrelson represented the plaintiff. March 15 was set for the hearing.

"With these favorable factors as a foundation a permanently strong economic structure may be reasonably assured."

Whiteside said the present situation justifies "broad, liberal credit policies." The constructive course "is by following that course distributive to the customers who have been and continue to be in good credit, even though handicapped at the moment."

"By following that course distributive to the customers who have been and continue to be in good credit, even though handicapped at the moment, the federal reserve system can be re-established their liquid position through the conversion of merchandise into cash and the shipments into accounts receivable and consequently into cash."

CURRENCY ISSUE TO BE EXPANDED UNDER GLASS ACT

Reserve Banks Notified

NEW YORK SEES IMMEDIATE AID

Clouds Begin To Clear
as Treasury Relaxes Provisions Permitting
Emergency Funds.

By the Associated Press.

The tremendous resources of the federal reserve system were employed tonight as the basis for an expansion of currency to meet the nation's requirements in the emergency banking holiday.

The new administration appeared to be resorting to the vast aid afforded by recent legislation—the Glass-Steagall act—to induce in the controlled expansion necessary for the clearing of the moratorium.

Great difficulties found in the way of state and local clearing house scrip turned the administration toward the hitherto slightly used opportunities for expansion under the terms of this act.

In looking up the gold supply against the emergency currency, the act provided that the federal reserve banks by Sunday night's drastic proclamation, Mr. Roosevelt made available the expansion of currency which bankers had not taken advantage of through the terms of the Glass-Steagall act.

Whether new Federal Reserve banks or temporary emergency currency would be employed remains for presidential approval.

The Glass-Steagall act permits reserve banks to use so-called "free gold" not otherwise needed for the issuance of new currency. It also permits them to substitute government obligations for commercial paper to back reserve notes.

Officials of the New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Dallas reserve banks reported they had received notice from Secretary of the Treasury Woodin permitting conditions for temporary emergency currency banks in exchange for gold coin and gold certificates owned by the banks.

New York bankers regarded the partial opening of the reserve banks as a vital step in the restoration of adequate normal banking activity. Some bank executives early in the day had expressed the opinion that the New York banks could resume rather extensive activity, should the reserve bank reopen.

In some banking quarters, it was felt that resumption of reserve bank operations would obviate much of the need of an emergency currency system. It was explained that the reserve system could legally issue all needed amount of currency which might be desired.

Midway in the four-day national moratorium, President Roosevelt and his advisors continued work upon an emergency program to be kept in effect until the nation's gold supply was placed in fact and hoarding was discouraged as vital steps in maintaining public confidence.

BODY OF CERMAK NEARING CHICAGO

Georgians Place Funeral Wreath on Casket as Train Stops in Albany.

By HENRY S. WRENN.
ABOARD MAYOR CERMAK'S
FUNERAL TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—Anton J. Cermak, who typified America's saga of success before falling under an assassin's leaden bullet, tonight was on the last stage of his homeward journey to Chicago, and a major's funeral on Friday.
This special train, running on a schedule of 40 miles an hour, will arrive in Chicago at 10 a. m. Wednesday, returning that city's mayor and long-time public servant to Lake Michigan shores, where he scored the compliments of his life.
It is bringing him from Miami,
Fla., where he was wounded fatally
February 15, by a bullet Giuseppe Zangara fired at Franklin D. Roosevelt, then the president-elect.
The train made few stops en route, but at every station crowds were gathered. Where stops were made, doors were opened to the coach in which Mayor Cermak's body reposed.
At Albany, Ga., a delegation of citizens, headed by the mayor and a committee, met the funeral train and a large wreath of pink roses and pink snapdragons on a stand with a letter of condolence was placed on the car in which the casket sat. The wreath was taken in charge by the guard of Miami policemen, who said it would be carried back to the family with the letter as soon as they arose from their night's rest. They stated it was the first tribute of the kind since the train had left Miami.

The committee which headed the delegation of citizens was composed of Mayor J. S. Billington, Max Shepard and R. F. Morley, representing the city; John A. Davis and W. C.
Holman, Chamber of Commerce, and Mallory Lipitt, county commissioner, representing Dougherty county.
After arriving in Chicago the mayor's body will remain at his home Wednesday. It will lie in state at city hall Thursday.

ZANGARA ARRAIGNED IS ORDERED FOR THURSDAY
MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The assassin Giuseppe Zangara, bowing and smiling at the curious gaze of a courtroom full of spectators, today was ordered arraigned on Thursday for the murder of Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, in his wild attempt to slay
President Roosevelt.

His attorneys—the same he had when he was sentenced to 80 years imprisonment on plea of guilty to charges of attempting the life of the president and three bystanders in Bay Front park February 15—declined to say whether Zangara will plead guilty to the murder charge.

SIX ARE INDICTED IN KIDNAP ROUNDUP

Members of the committee, after an executive session in which it was voted to meet again this afternoon and start preparing the bill for the senate section, expressed themselves as unwilling to go over the budget bureau's total appropriation indicating conflict with the house over its bill carrying more than $10,000,000.

Chief Clark said Youngberg, a former Connecticut railroad man, had confessed his part.
Identification of the house was positive, Clark said, revealing that Youngberg had taken measures during his captivity to insure leaving toll-free evidence in the place. A cigar box he turned in a rug by the young broker and his finger prints, liberally smeared on the walls, were found as he described them, Clark said.

Carl W. Pearce, 36, accused by Clark of being the man who transcribed on a typewriter the numerous ransom notes sent the Host, her family, is held in jail in Denver.

The original "tip" on the case,
Clark said, came from Patrolman J.
H. Wells, who received a report that Pearce was talking about the case.
On his own initiative, Wells gained Pearce's confidence and obtained enough evidence to warrant the arrest, Clark said.

Pearce and Mrs. Kohler were arrested early Sunday.
Mrs. Sankey had been arrested on Saturday and Clark said his officers found $1,400 of the marked ransom money. They also found the original drafts of the ransom notes which were sent to Claude K. Boettcher, multimillionaire father of the kidnapped broker. The notes were first written in long hand and then typewritten, Clark said. The long hand notes were on identically the same kind of paper as those received by the Boettcher family, he added.

Clark said Sankey and Youngberg were the men who actually kidnaped Young Boettcher the night of February 12, as he drove into his garage.
Elkhorn, the chief said, awaited them on the ranch. Youngberg and Elkhorn then took care of Boettcher while Sankey acted as messenger between Denver and the ranch, Clark said.

each of the years 1934 and 1935, submitted to the general assembly as $8-set at about $8,000,000, State Auditor Tom Wisdom Tuesday night informed the appropriations committee of the senate.

Members of the committee, after an executive session in which it was voted
to meet again this afternoon and start
preparing the bill for the senate section, expressed themselves as
unwilling to go over the budget bureau's total appropriation indicating tion.

The new democratic chief executive took the proposal under advisement and indicated that his decision might hinge on opinions to be submitted by Attorney-General Cummings and Chairman Henry Morgenthau Jr., of the federal farm board. He referred the petition of the southern leaders to these two department heads for examination, along with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace who will be expected to file a report within a day or so.

Armed with an exhaustive brief on the subject prepared by Representative Eugene Cox, of Georgia, the southern group went to the White House today and held a lengthy conference with the president. Mr.
Roosevelt's authority to sign the bill and thus make it operative was contended by the Georgia congressmen yesterday in a communication sent to the White House and the department of justice, based upon a thorough examination of all decisions and precedents bearing on the case.

The question involved is the right of an incoming president to sign a bill passed by an expiring congress and unacted upon by the retiring president. In his brief, Judge Cox pointed out that under the federal constitution the president is given ten days after the adjournment of congress in which to approve or veto legislation passed at the close of the session. Raising a unique controversy yet to be settled by the courts, he argued that the constitutional provision was intended to apply to the office of president rather than to a given president. Consequently President Roosevelt, he said, is empowered to exercise a function which the former chief executive may have omitted to perform.

COUNCILMAN SIMS DIES AT HOSPITAL

Widely Known Atlanta Man Was Business and Political Leader.

Charles Henry Sims, 68, of 682
Pryor street, S. W., for four years councilman from the second ward, died at the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital early Tuesday morning after

COUNCILMAN C. H. SIMS.

a short illness. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at St. John's Methodist church, in which he was a steward for 35 years.

Born in Maysville, Ga., on September 8, 1864, Mr. Sims came to Atlanta as a young man. He had been connected with the Keely Company for nearly 35 years and even during his young manhood was prominently connected with civic, church and fraternal affairs.
Four years ago Mr. Sims was elected to council and was serving his second term at the time of his death.

Soon after he entered the city governing body he became a staunch supporter for the policies and reforms advocated by Mayor Key and during the recall effort last year he took an active part in the defense of the mayor.

Mayor Key and Mr. Sims' colleagues were grief-stricken at news of his death and the flag atop the city hall was ordered at half-mast.
Mr. Sims is survived by his wife and two brothers, Clark Sims, of Commerce, and Sherman Sims, of Atlanta. Funeral services will be conducted by his pastor, the Rev. E. C.
Wilson, and interment will be in West View. Active pallbearers will be selected from members of city council and Mayor Key will lead a group of the councilman and aldermanic board as an honorary escort.
Harry G. Poole is directing funeral arrangements.

JAPAN COMPLETES DRAFT ON LEAGUE WITHDRAWAL

TOKYO, March 8.—(Wednesday).
(UP)—A draft of Japan's formal withdrawal from the League of Nations has been completed and will go before the cabinet at 4 p. m. today for approval, the newspaper Asahi said.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN PEIPING, TIENTSIN

PEIPING, China, March 7.—(UP)— Martial law went into effect in both Peiping and Tientsin at 10 o'clock tonight.

The decree was ordered because of the tension that has arisen as a result of the Japanese route of Chinese defending forces in Jehol province, and of Chinese and Japanese fighting at passes through the Great Wall, to the north of the two cities.

How can these expensive coffees
COST YOU SO LITTLE

A & P Coffees are expensive coffees—at the plantations in South America. As the world's largest coffee buyer, we always have first choice of the crops. We pay an extra premium, when necessary, to obtain the quality we insist upon.

But these fine coffees cost you little because we bring them to you from the planter direct—bought, shipped, distributed, roasted and sold—all by A & P and all at one small profit.

And because they are roasted in our widely distributed local roasting plants, we are able to deliver them frequently to your neighborhood A & P Store, inexpensively packed, still in the bean, with all the flavor of freshly roasted coffee protected by nature's own unbroken seal.

Your coffee is then ground before your eyes exactly right for your method of making—and the aroma of oven-fresh coffee in every A & P Store is your guarantee of the natural freshness of A & P Coffees.

This is A & P Coffee Service. No other coffee merchant has it. So A & P alone can offer you these expensive coffees at these low prices.

SURGEONS CONCLUDE SESSIONS HERE TODAY

Two outstanding surgeons of the United States, Dr. Hugh Cabot, of the Mayo clinic, and Dr. W. Wayne Babcock, of Philadelphia, will read papers at today's concluding session of the Southeastern Surgical Congress meeting at the Biltmore hotel. Dr. Babcock is professor of surgery in Temple University.

Other speakers at today's session will be Dr. Alton Ochsner, of New Orleans; Dr. C. H. Richardson Jr., of Macon; Dr. Charles Bagley Jr., of Baltimore; Dr. Lee F. Turlington, of Birmingham and Dr. Cecil D. Gaston, of Birmingham.

Dr. Walter E. Sistrunk, of Dallas, was to have spoken today, but died of poisoning in a New Orleans hotel Monday night en route here.

Today the ladies of the convention will be taken on an automobile tour of the city.

DEATHBED WEDDING CLIMAXES ROMANCE OF ATLANTA COUPLE

A romance, the culmination of which was reached in the shadow of death, ended Tuesday when the young bridegroom, stricken with a fatal illness, succumbed in the arms of his bride at Crawford W. Long hospital. He was James Lamar Adams, 25, who two weeks ago married Miss Christine Jackson, of 500 Boulevard N. E., to whom he had been engaged for three years.

Realizing that death was inevitable, young Adams, whose illness was pronounced incurable, and Miss Jackson decided to consummate their engagement and the ceremony was performed a fortnight ago by Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church. Previously, the couple had planned to be married in June, after Adams was to have been graduated from the Atlanta Law school. Death occurred Tuesday morning.

Adams is survived by his wife; his father, George L. Adams; two sisters, Mrs. H. F. Horne, of Jacksonville, and Mrs. J. C. Wright, of Weaverville, N. C.; and a brother, A. L. Adams, of Jacksonville. Funeral services, under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son, will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Newton officiating. Rites will be held at Spring Hill chapel, and interment will be in West View cemetery.

CINCINNATI TO OPEN $60,000,000 TERMINAL

The new $60,000,000 terminal at Cincinnati, Ohio, will be opened to the public on Sunday, April 2, according to O. L. Mitchell, general agent, passenger department, New York Central Lines, Atlanta, who attended the meeting of traffic representatives of the Big Four at Cincinnati on Monday.

Mr. Mitchell describes the depot as one of the most monumental and complete structures that has ever been. No detail, for the convenience and comfort of the traveling public, has been overlooked, he said.

SYMONDS VISITS WESTINGHOUSE AREA

N. G. Symonds, vice president in charge of sales of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, is the guest of Thomas Fuller, manager of the Westinghouse Company in the southeast district. Mr. Symonds has just completed a trip through the Carolinas and will continue from Atlanta on to New Orleans.

He has been a frequent visitor in the south. Mr. Symonds entered the employ of a Westinghouse subsidiary in 1902. In 1915 he became part of the Westinghouse Company, manager of the power division of the Chicago office. Six years later he was made district manager of Chicago and in 1929 he was made commercial vice president of the central division of the Westinghouse Company. Within the past year he was appointed vice president in charge of sales for the entire Westinghouse Company.

R. E. Imhoff, sales manager of the merchandising division, is accompanying Mr. Symonds on this trip.

Shutdown in Prospect In Film Industry

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—(P)—The likelihood of a general shutdown in the film industry grew tonight as motion picture producers assembled to await word from New York headquarters on the course to be taken.

Although Hollywood studio executives were anxious to keep production plants open until pictures now in the making are completed, the general opinion prevailed that those holding the financial reins of the industry in New York would order cessation of all activity.

The effect of the banking holiday was felt at two studios during the day when Universal suspended all contracts and Fox notified its employees that salaries could not be paid. Universal's action in suspending contracts left the studio deserted except for a skeleton staff that worked without salaries. Production there was stopped about three weeks ago and the present staff of 25 consists of executives and writers.

ISSUANCE OF SCRIP SPEEDED BUSINESS IN 1907 DEPRESSION

If history repeats itself, the wheels of Atlanta commerce will begin to turn with ever-increasing speed within a few days, according to comparable conditions of nearly 25 years ago when the last issue of clearing house certificates—"scrip"—to the man in the street—were issued.

On October 30, 1907, the Atlanta clearing house association authorized $2,000,000 in certificates and printing presses turned out the crinkly paper.

And did business pick up? One would judge so from the advertisements in The Constitution during early November of 1907. Daniel Brothers carried an ad headed with a heavy black line, "Remarkable Business We Are Doing." Department stores finished full size advertisements and welcomed the scrip with open arms. Everywhere there was a feeling of confidence.

And as if to serve as double reminiscence—a nod to Roosevelt was president—Theodore Roosevelt serving his last year as chief executive.

RUSSIA CHALLENGE TO REST OF WORLD, HINDUS SAY HERE

Asserting that Russia's revolution had contributed much to the world along the line of concentrated national planning, Madrice Hindus, noted Russian lecturer and writer, told an audience Tuesday morning at the Piedmont Driving Club that the "Russia of today is the great challenge to the whole of civilization."

Mr. Hindus, who was the last speaker in a series of five sponsored by the Atlanta Fournight Series, described the objects and aims of the Russian Five Year Plan, and compared it with the basis of civilization in the western world. American civilization, as an example, is based on private enterprise, religion, and individualistic family life, he said. Russia has torn down the first two and has changed the last.

Because of the idea of concentrated national planning which began with the revolution in Russia, Mr. Hindus asserted, the whole world is looking for President Roosevelt to do something for the relief of the present economic crisis.

KARTZKE OUTLINES GERMAN CHANGES IN EMORY LECTURE

Delivering an interpretation of present-day Germany, Dr. Karl Kartzke, eminent German educator, who is visiting Atlanta with Gustav Oberlander, of Reading, Pa., told an audience at Glenn Memorial church Tuesday night that the Teutonic nation has undergone a complete change of social order.

This spiritual struggle, the speaker explained, is reflected in education, where the reform "has changed the teacher to a leader and friend, has opened many new ways to school and university," and "has established a community of thought based on things German." In this connection, he said, sports have taken unprecedented development, "but not so much for the sake of records, but for the sake of body training."

In his introductory remarks Dr. Kartzke sketched the historic background of Germany.

RADIO HEAD PLEASED BY ROOSEVELT MOVE

The following telegram was sent Tuesday by Powell Crosley Jr. to Beck & Gregg, local Crosley radio distributors:

"After reading the president's proclamation, we are completely reassured as to the future. We are continuing to manufacture and make shipments of Crosley merchandise with the firm conviction that it is only a matter of a few days until perfected banking arrangements will be in effect. We look forward to complete restoration of confidence and looking for the past three years. And restoration of confidence will be a tremendous stimulation to business.

"We will be glad to establish an even more liberal line of credit to our distributors. We urge you to maintain good stock and telegraph orders so we may anticipate material purchases."

Lilly Probe Opens.

Investigation into the recent conduct of the DeKalb county police force under the supervision of former Chief A. W. Lilly was begun Tuesday by the DeKalb grand jury. After hearing 14 witnesses Tuesday, including O. B. Wright and his wife, and W. E. Hartley and Mrs. Hartley, the jury adjourned at 3:30 o'clock to meet again this morning.

Jig-Saw Puzzles in Demand; $250 Is Offered in Cash Prizes

By THE JIG-SAW EDITOR.
There may be a so-called depression for some people, but for me it's the busiest time I've had yet. The Constitution has just issued its biggest and best jig-saw puzzle, offering $250 in cash prizes.

The puzzles were on sale at the front counter, first floor of The Constitution, and promptly at 9 o'clock many of the faithful fans were waiting. All through the day jig-saw fans came and brought the special prize puzzle, or obtained a free copy on paper.

This contest is open to everyone except employees of The Constitution and their families. It does not cost one cent to enter and every person asking will receive a copy of the puzzle.

Those who desire to get one of the puzzles printed in three colors on heavy cardboard may purchase one for only 25 cents. The prizes will be awarded for those returned in the neatest, most correct novel and unique methods of arrangements.

These puzzles will remain on sale through Saturday, April 29, at which time the contest closes. Promptly at midnight on Sunday, April 30, the contest closes, and those puzzles which have been returned correctly solved will be judged. The names of the winners will be printed in The Constitution of Tuesday, May 2.

All that is necessary to do is to get one of the free puzzles or buy one of the three-color cardboard puzzles. Put it together, paste a heavy piece of paper or light cardboard on the reverse side, decorate it in any manner you see fit and return it to the Jig-saw department of The Constitution on or before midnight April 30.

Through a typographical error, it was announced that there were only 21 dancing couples remaining in the Marathon at the Palais Peachtree. There are 27 couples still standing the test.

The management announced that the elimination of dancers was the most difficult ever experienced. The dancers seem to thrive on long hours and an occasional application of the "grind."

Small Car Causes Farley To Have Hat Trouble

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(UP)—Postmaster-General Farley is having silk hat trouble, it developed Monday, similar to that suffered by his predecessor, Walter Brown.

Farley rolled up to the White House today in a 20-cent taxicab with a slightly tilted silk hat set squarely on his brow.

"Yeh," said he, "it looks like I'll have to get an auto that fits my hat. I understand there's one down at the postoffice department building."

Brown amused the nation a few weeks ago when it was revealed that he had traded in at government expense a small sedan for a big one so that there would be room for his hat.

6 Negroes Convicted.

Six negroes, charged with breaking locks from parked automobiles in the business district and stealing articles left in the machines, were given sentences of 12 months each Tuesday in criminal court of Atlanta. Two were convicted and four entered pleas of guilty. The two convicted were James Johnson and Woodrow Wilson, while the four who entered pleas of guilty were Jim Ponder, John Manley, Ben Brown and Asa Williams.

... "the only thing
we have to fear
is fear itself"

... President Roosevelt, March 4, 1933

Last Saturday Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated as the thirty-second President of the United States.

Practically everyone in Atlanta either heard his Inaugural Address over the radio, or read it in the newspaper.

Twenty-four hours before he spoke, Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, declared a Bank Holiday.

He did so because he knew that a public fear with its unthinking demands was threatening to put our banks in a position where they could no longer properly serve our public. The Governor wisely declared this Bank Holiday to give all of us time to realize this.

He declared this Bank Holiday to give us time to remember that:

- (1) We, the Public, put our money in banks for safekeeping.
- (2) The Banks, under the law, put that money to work; they make legal investments to pay our interest, and banks' expenses.
- (3) At no one time—even peak prosperity—could the bank sell these securities to pay each of us every dollar—without causing us and our banks great losses.
- (4) Were all of us to ask our banks to pay each of us every dollar at the same time, it would force heavy losses upon ourselves and the banks. Governor Talmadge declared the Holiday to make us soberly realize all that.

He gave us a chance to realize that we live in the soundest country in the world;

... that it has the safest and sanest form of Government;

... that since its adoption of the Constitution in 1780, there have been five wars and ten panics, and we have come out of each stronger, healthier, saner.

We are the envy of the world for our strength in natural resources, energy, inventiveness, in patriotic leadership, and in courage.

We elected President Roosevelt because we trust him. That man, our President, knows our distress. He knows our unemployment. He will leave no step untaken which will put men back in jobs, and food back on tables.

The following quotation was taken from a statement made on Monday by Mr. Jesse Isidor Straus, President of R. H. Macy Company, Inc., with which Davison's is affiliated. Mr. Straus said he had set down a code which he is following, to which we heartily subscribe.

"I trust my Government.

"I trust our Banks.

"I do not expect the impossible.

"I shall do nothing hysterical. I shall act as nearly as I can to normal. If it is normal to carry little cash in my pocket when there is plenty to go around, I shall carry little now.

"There never was a time when everyone on earth could possess all his cash in his pockets, his stocking, his safety deposit box, or anywhere else.

"If I try now to get all my cash, I shall certainly make matters worse.

"I will not stampede. I will not lose nerve. I will keep my head."

Meanwhile the Government is moving swiftly to take such measures as will enable every householder and storekeeper to carry on his normal affairs uninterruptedly.

People who have jobs will probably be paid in full. Davison-Paxon Company's employees, for instance, will be paid IN CASH on Thursday as usual. This store will carry on as usual with all its facilities at the disposal of the citizens of Atlanta and Georgia.

Both charge and cash customers will find everything going on normally, just as usual.

Every day can make a turn for the better. This day can be the turning point of our country's future.

It is up to everyone of us.

WE TAKE IT SMILING.

No more convincing example of the ability of the American people to "take it on the chin" and come up smiling has appeared in the history of the nation than in the spirit with which they have accepted the inconveniences resulting from the four-day bank holiday.

As a people we have greeted this drastic step with cheer and increased confidence.

For such a manifestation there is, of course, more reasons than merely the sturdiness of spirit and bulldog stick-to-it-iveness we inherit from our forebears.

Chief among these reasons is the sure faith of the people of the United States in the certain return to normal conditions. They know their country well enough—its latent wealth, its boundless resources and its wide-flung opportunities for prosperity and happiness—to realize that the troubles of the day are only temporary, and that "the sun will shine tomorrow."

HERIOT SOFT-SOAPS SOVIETS.

A significant bit of Soviet friendship, if not for an actual alliance, is made by former Prime Minister Herriot, of France, in an article appearing in the current issue of Marianne, a new weekly in which international statesmen are to have their say upon important questions of the day.

The significance of M. Herriot's article is emphasized by the influence he wields over the present government, of which a member of his own party is premier, and the suspicion among other European nations that France would like to broaden the economic empire she has built up on the continent by the addition of Russia.

She now has "understandings" with Russia, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Belgium and Spain, giving her a preferred position in economic relations—a business and financial domain which extends, through her colonies in Africa, from Russia to a point deep in the heart of the dark continent.

It is not surprising, therefore, that England, Germany and Italy should look askance at M. Herriot's declaration that "if the soviet union desires it, she will find independent men in France fully ready to collaborate with her in the work of international peace and also in the building up of her industrial structure."

Herriot goes further and prophesies that "Russia is going to play a big role in the future; to a certain extent, I would say Russia holds the key to the world situation."

It is known that Herriot, when prime minister, rejected several propositions from Chancellor Von Papen, of Germany, for the formation of an alliance between France and Germany to combat communism, basing his refusal on the dual grounds that he did not "think it the task of the French republic to crush a regime which obviously works for the betterment of its people, nor to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for the benefit of the German barons."

While thus rebuking Germany, M. Herriot goes further and attacks the other chief economic rival of France on the continent by saying: "Italy's support of Hitler does not lead Europe into paths of peace; we Frenchmen must give up the idea of mellowing Italy by making concessions."

Up to this time one of the chief stumbling blocks to an alliance between Russia and France has been the relations between the latter and Poland, which is violently anti-soviet. Much the same has also been true of Rumania.

Now, however, it is rumored that both these countries have secret understandings with the Hitler regime and that they are likely to transfer their preferences to Germany. If this is true, it is, in all probability, the reason for M. Herriot's "feeler" towards the establishment of closer relations with the soviets.

THE ONLY SAFE COURSE.

The rigid caucus rule adopted by the democrats of the senate, under which the party's entire membership in that body will be bound to support as a unit any caucus-approved measure, presents the only safe course by which the party can safely discharge the vital responsibilities imposed upon it.

The democratic members of the house should take the same action so that the party, from the first day of the special session, may present a united front in support of all measures approved by a majority of its membership.

There will, of course, be divisions of opinion among the democrats, but the place to thrash out these differences is in caucuses, and not on the floors of congress.

At a time like this there should be not a single dissenter among the democrats to the will of the majority, ascertained at party caucuses.

Any member of congress not broad and patriotic enough to realize that under present conditions the good of the whole must take precedence over individual opinion, should resign.

President Roosevelt has struck straight at the root of our most serious problems and congress should back him to the limit.

A DESERVED RECOGNITION.

The appointment of Harlee Branch, for many years Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Journal, as executive assistant of Postmaster-General Farley, is well keeping with Mr. Farley's announcement of some weeks ago that all appointments would be based on the dual considerations of fitness and loyalty party service.

One of the chief duties of the office to which Mr. Branch has been named will be to act as contact man between congress and the postoffice department. He is particularly fitted to discharge this important function because of his intimate knowledge of the details of the workings of congress and the various federal departments and the high regard in which he is held by the leading members of both the house and the senate.

Mr. Branch is a gifted journalist, highly esteemed at home and throughout the country. During the campaign of last year he did yeoman service as a member of the press department of the democratic campaign committee.

His appointment is a well-merited recognition of efficient and loyal service, and it goes without saying that he will in every way measure up to the responsibilities of the duties with which he will be charged.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

Essentials.

The other day I happened to be in a building, just on the point of opening the door, when a genteel matron of my acquaintance cornered me, cornered to be understood in a literal sense. I could not get away. She began by telling me that they just had a cold wave in America and that we were sure to get the tail-end of that wave hanging on the neck of this side. I agreed with her. I agreed with everything she said. I was cornered. Then she informed me that she always read the World's Window. It's very interesting, she said, but you must not forget the essentials, she added.

I expressed my regret. She paid me attention. "How can I ever find these people who talk about right and wrong? You should be a warrior, an idealist, you are so young. You could great writer if you only would not forget the essentials," she assured me.

I still agreed with her. "And then," she went on, "something just struck me the other day. I'm afraid to write to you about it. It's a good idea, you saved me a letter. Why don't you do something against cruelty to animals? Surely, a young man like you should not be afraid to tell the truth. Were you afraid in the war? Sure you were not," she went on.

"I assured her mine was seething. "Oh, yes," she said, "and there was something else. 'How is it you never mention theology?' I don't know anything about it," I replied. "Heaven knows you know nothing about theology. Here, my boy, take this ticket. It will admit you to the next session of our lodge. Come to me, you will learn something."

"I'll be in Germany on that day," I said, glancing at the date on the card. "Just like you," she snorted, "wandering over there to see those Germans. Why don't you pay attention to the essentials? You did not mention a fight against it. I promised."

"The editor of the New York World told me once that he never knew of people every week who knew how to run a paper better than he did, and who also knew how to write better features, columns, news and draw better comics. 'The trouble is,' he added, 'we can't give them all a chance. It would be such a bother. We have to get along with the men and material available.'"

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

LET US HAVE MORE PLUMBING AND LESS ORNATE.

Some few define a pedestrian as a man with three cars, a wife and two children. Here is a plaintive note from a man with three automobiles and a pre-B. C. family.

Dear Dr. Brady: Your repeated allusions to nervous constipation induces me to write to you. (It is news to me that I have a "nervous constipation.")

Immediately after coming out of home from my house in the east 11 years ago I became constipated and have continued so up to the present.

While working as an employee of the United States government, I entered business for myself the case has been hopeless. . . . (A-l-h-a-h, my friends, this "nervous constipation" is not "nervous" as you think I have been trying to teach the public for years—that 99 per cent of such trouble is purely a habit and the wisecracker layman cultivates the bad habit from fear inspired in his untutored mind by the dire consequences of a great ailment. The very quackery interests constantly tell the wisecracker population will befall if one "neglects" the "regulation" of the bowels.)

During the 11 years I moved several times, went on vegetable diets, and even lived for a year on the plan advised by your good friend Dr. . . . (The charlatan mentioned is no friend of mine and what's more he isn't a physician at all, but just a fake "doctor," a fellow who has assumed this title.)

Last year my family left me for an extended vacation and I was left alone in the house. The very next day after they left my bowel action was perfect and remained so until the return of my family, when the old trouble set in again. My observations are that if I could live in a house all by myself . . . but when I live with others, such as fear, anxiety, worry, anger, suspicion, jealousy, worry, or annoyance, definitely retard or inhibit peristalsis throughout the entire alimentary tract. Some such factor most likely accounts for the trouble.

DAY BY DAY

In Georgia's History

One hundred and ninety-four years ago today, General James Oglethorpe rewarded Mr. O'Brien who founded Augusta in 1735, by recommending that the trustees of the city sign in Mr. O'Brien's favor a grant of 500 acres of land.

On March 15, one hundred and ninety-four years ago, what important resolution affecting the willing of property in Georgia was passed by the state legislature?

For the two best fifty-word original answers to the foregoing question, Loew's Grand Theater, co-operating with The Constitution in this feature, will award two pairs of guest tickets. Answers must be mailed to the Day by Day Editor, Constitution, and must bear a postmark not later than midnight tomorrow.

"Clear All Wires," with Lee Tracy, will be the picture to which the first week's winners will receive guest tickets. The production begins Friday at the Grand.

Better a Dinner of Herbs With Your Own Crowd than a Stalled Ox With High Harts

By Robert Quillen

The pursuit of happiness, which the fathers regarded as an inalienable right, usually is wasted effort. You can't achieve happiness by force of will, as you might achieve success, and the determination to have it at any cost invariably develops a spirit of selfishness that makes the quest hopeless.

But if it is impossible to win happiness by conscious effort, you can at least avoid many of the things that cause unhappiness. One of these, since our happiness is at the mercy of our associates, is incompatibility.

People smile in derision when incompatibility is given as a reason for divorce, but it would be difficult to find a better or more urgent cause for the divorce than "get along" together, their one hope of happiness lies in separation.

To be happy, we must associate with people of our own class—not our "social equals," but those who share our tastes and interests. If a man's one absorbing interest is books and a woman's one source of pleasure is bridge, on what foundation will they base a comradeship to survive the intimacy of marriage?

Of course people of widely divergent interests can be friends, but there is no happiness for intimate associates who have little or nothing in common.

That explains the unhappiness of those who quit the class into which they were born and look for friends among the rich. And it explains the "happy though poor" state of many who had their day of lonely grandeur in boom times and now are back in the familiar and beloved environment of their earlier poverty.

The people we enjoy are those who speak our language, worship our gods, share our ideals, envy whom we envy and snub whom we snub.

To marry out of your class or climb out of it is to invite unhappiness. You can't be with people who say a thing is incompatible. Exquisite if you say it's lousy.

Transfer of State Farm Division To University Sought in Two Bills

Two bills, affecting in a vital way the farmers of Georgia and involving a transfer of services now performed by the state department of agriculture to the extension department of agriculture of the University of Georgia system, will be before the house of representatives today.

The bills, introduced by Representatives Burton, of Franklin; Collier, of Madison; Edwards, of Stephens; and Eckford, of Burke, are:

"House Bill No. 596 proposes to transfer all the collection of samples of fertilizers to the extension department. Under the provisions of this bill, the fertilizer and soil samples collected by the extension department of agriculture will be abolished and all the gathering of samples of fertilizers will be done by the county agents sent to the department of agriculture. There will be no appropriation asked for this work. The county agents will do this work in connection with their other duties, without any extra expense to the state. In 1932, the salaries and expenses of fertilizer inspectors amounted to more than $34,000. This bill provides for a net saving of $34,000. The bill also provides for the elimination of the conflict and overlapping in having two departments doing the same class of work."

"House Bill No. 688 provides for abolishing the bureau of markets of the department of agriculture on January 1, 1934. It further provides that the bureau of markets of the department of agriculture shall be transferred to the extension department of the University of Georgia system. Under the provisions of this bill, the extension department will be more effectively and more efficiently than it is now done at a saving of from $30,000 to $40,000. This bill provides for the elimination of the conflict and overlapping in having two departments doing the same class of work."

"The present time, there are 121 county agents in Georgia, serving about 125 counties. Every county that has a county agent has an adjoining county that has an agent. The extension department of the University of Georgia system, has agreed to furnish inspection service to every county, whether it has a county agent or not."

Tannage lauds Assembly. Discusses Capitol Meeting

Governor Eugene Talmadge's speech to the legislature meeting in joint session Tuesday follows in full:

"Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Ladies and Gentlemen of the General Assembly: I come in to talk to you today, two weeks before the date of the adjournment of the regular session, and in the beginning, I wish to commend you for the work that you have done and for the earnest effort you have attached to all legislation.

"Some comments of people who do not know the legislature would not have tried to criticize the general assembly of Georgia for not passing much legislation for the first four or five weeks of the session. The comments like this come from people with good minds but who do not understand all legislative branches of our state government.

"While the nature of the work of the legislature makes it appear that they are marking time for the first four or five weeks, this is not the case. The number of bills that the senators and representatives have to introduce and get passed. Those local bills, nine times out of ten, are introduced and passed in the first week of the session. The bills that the senators and senators in their home counties and districts.

"We are here to enact laws, and we men and women here together are making history, and you will see the outcome of it quicker than any of us dream. My idea is that in 12 months rolls around, in legislature and in government, we are going to be in untried fields. All of you could have been with us at the inauguration in Washington. It was the first that I ever attended. I hope that it will be the last one. There, going down the line and looking at a quarter of a million people from all sections of the United States with the flag and seeing the president sworn in, swells the patriotism in your hearts that nothing else will, and that is exactly what we need in this country. "I Am Proud for Atlanta's Sake"

TRAVELERS from distant cities often ask to be shown through Spring Hill, having heard it described as the world's most beautiful mortuary. Much as we appreciate the praise of these visitors, we value even more the comments of our own Atlanta neighbors... such as the local business man who said recently:

"I am proud for Atlanta's sake that we have here an institution surpassing anything of its kind in the country. I am equally proud that Patterson's, by their lower charges, have made it possible for those of smallest means to have a truly beautiful funeral service... such as even the wealthiest families in other sections can rarely obtain."

Visit Spring Hill when you are nearby, and write today for a copy of the booklet... "A Memory Picture."

SWANSON WILL SEEK LARGER NAVY FOR U. S.

New Secretary Would Build Treaty Force as Soon as Possible.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson, in his first press conference as head of the navy, today said that he would make every effort to build the American navy up to the limits of the London treaty as soon as conditions permit.

Secretary Swanson, who attended the disarmament conference at Geneva last summer, said the United States as well as other nations should benefit by the ratio fixed by the London agreement, whether by increase or a decrease being a matter to be decided by the state department. "My opinion is that the fleet should be built up to treaty limits as quickly as possible," the secretary said, adding that if this work were started it would aid in relieving unemployment. Swanson said the fleet would remain in the Pacific until the situation in the far east had become more calm.

CHEVROLET DEALERS, OFFICIALS MEET HERE

With C. G. Smith, Atlanta zone manager, in charge of the meeting, more than 200 Chevrolet car dealers and their salesmen met here Tuesday and considered plans for the 1933 sales campaign. The meeting was the annual get-together affair of factory officials and dealers, Mr. Smith said. He said that the company was putting on its biggest drive, and planned to keep the supremacy already established by the Chevrolet car.

BILLS TO RESTRICT WEIGHT OF TRUCKS OFFERED IN HOUSE

stocks, bonds and other securities sold in Georgia in the last two years.

3 Atlanta Bills Received. The house during the day received three Atlanta bills sponsored by Representatives Eckford, of Fulton, and Lindsay, of DeKalb. One of these provides the fixing of water rates by council. Other measures permit council to name the building inspector, superintendent of electrical affairs and the city warden for terms of four years.

The new resolutions included one by Representative Hartfield which would increase the city's borrowing power to $2,000,000. Representative Harris, of Richmond, introduced a bill in the house to compel Georgia banks to engage in the banking business only and to prohibit any bank from owning stock in affiliate or holding companies.

Harris' bill also would make it illegal for any bank to buy or sell stocks and bonds and other securities and to act as guardians or administrators. He also would prohibit banks from engaging in the real estate business.

The automobile license tax conference committee named Monday met Tuesday for the first time but took no action. The house ways and means committee late Tuesday afternoon voted 13 to 5 to kill a proposed tax of 10 per cent on chewing tobacco and snuff. The committee delayed until today a vote of the 5 per cent general sales tax proposal.

The house committee on state of republic Tuesday night approved by substitute the Terrell salary cut bill which passed the senate. The substitute, by Simmons, of Decatur, was amended so as to create a commission of the governor, two members of the house, and two members of the senate, with power to regulate salaries paid by various departments of the state so that salaries will be uniform.

Sick committee investigating alleged job-selling in the department of agriculture, met in executive session Tuesday night at the Piedmont hotel. Another meeting will be held this afternoon at which the committee's report will be drawn up.

Meet With Chrysler Dealers

Joseph W. Frazer, general sales manager for the Chrysler Sales Corporation of Detroit, Mich., and Harry Sommers, president of the Harry Sommers, Inc., local Chrysler and Plymouth distributor. These men conducted a meeting of over 50 Chrysler and Plymouth dealers here on Tuesday at the Ansley hotel. This meeting, one of the best attended in the past several years, was the first of a series to be held in the south. Mr. Frazer said that never before had he seen such interest and enthusiasm for Chrysler products as that of the Georgia dealers. He freely predicted that 1933 would be the best year since 1929 for the automobile industry, as a whole, adding that this has already been reflected in increased demands on their factories from dealers in every section of the country.

Folly Island

By Wallace Irwin

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE.

Bart Burgess is married in a cabaret on Folly Island, 50 miles from his Long Island home in Waterville. His companion, Isabelle Frederick Warren, a spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Izzy," rows over to a town for a carpenter. A girl is a red canoe comes along and invites Bart over to her father's island, but her small brother says their mother would have a fit if Bart came home. Mr. Davis, the carpenter, tells Bart the Bayleys have lived on the island 15 years, but don't mix. The family travels. While the boat is being on the island, Bart goes over to the island with the girl, Alice Bayley. He invites her to visit in Waterville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Mr. Burgess. He asks Bart for his mother's sake, to guard the secret and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"The water was very cold." Then gently, to rid of her questions, "We wouldn't have come to you unless we had been very sure."

"Thank you." For a moment she looked again at her hands. "It was waited so long." Then quietly she asked, "You're with Ryan and Wheeler?"

"No. I've come as a lawyer."

"This was only half a lie; nearly two years at law school gave him a certain claim. And he thanked Hen Love for having given him the cue with the question, 'Are you a lawyer from Philadelphia?' Philadelphia. He remembered how Mrs. Bayley had asked him the same thing, a minute after they met. Her eyes were on him, so sad, so searching, but he went on. His memorandum instructed him to hold a hundred thousand dollars in trust for Alice."

"Of course, she would herself, but her lip."

"But why should there be?" The instinct of a cross-examiner was upon him now. He must know. "Well, she's the girl of the family. Hastily. 'And Matthew always had her education at heart.'"

Too quickly explained, then suddenly he attacked some secret weakness in the woman's armor. "Mrs. Bayley," he insisted pleasantly, "because I'm a lawyer, maybe."

Aunt Het

"Yes," a short agonized cry. She shook herself together with an effort of her strong will, but she was calm.

A wild triumph surged through Bart, and he would have flooded her with more reckless questions, but he heard her say calmly, "I've told you enough, Mr. Burgess."

Blood was surging in his cheeks. "Please don't think I was rude, Mrs. Bayley, but I had to know." Then he turned toward her and asked, "May I see Alice now?"

"I promise you that. Where can I find her?"

She motioned toward the hills above the garden. Distinctly he could hear the dogs barking.

In the uplands, hidden by rocks from the quiet houseboat and the delightful garden, he saw a spot of red under a twisted pine. Over there, unconsciously drooping, Alice's dark head leaned flowerlike over an open book.

The girl read a great deal, because she had nothing else to do. At first she was unconscious of Bart's approach, across an open pasture, and in the short walk he was burning with excitement. The warm delight which had drawn him to her in their first unfettered hour together, faded, and with a renewed confession, strangled though it was by a guarded secret, had banished a nightmare and left Bart free to follow the strong impulse of his heart.

Then Alice looked up from her book.

"The modern girl never cries. It takes too long to 'make up' these days."

FORGIVE ME FRAME

I have certain privileges—there are confidential matters you can discuss candidly with me. Then his question was pointed with a black suspicion. "Is there anything concerned with Matthew Bayley that you would care to—"

"Matthew Bayley?" Now there was a disarming honesty in her wide gaze. If a look could tell anything, she knew no more of her husband's identity than his daughter did. But she was persistent, worried. "What about Matthew Bayley?"

"I'm sorry," he apologized. "What I really want to ask doesn't concern him directly. Only there seems to be some confusion as to when he came to Folly Island."

"A question about our being married, you mean?" She was laughing now, rather forbidding, but worried. "Will it be necessary for me to show our marriage license?"

"Forgive me, Mrs. Bayley." Like a grande dame she was putting him in his place, but a certain Burgess was persistent, worried. "I just wanted to make a record for our files. Were you married in Port England?"

A dot of hesitation, then, "Yes." "I wonder you would tell me the date, approximately."

"Nineteen years ago—" Her gently rolling intonation stopped suddenly, and under her serene mask he saw the lie. A lovely woman, Trevor Burgess, letter had said, "Yes, she was that. A fugitive from justice. Then in a flash Bart remembered what the carpenter had told him at Port England. How had come there to join her husband, bringing her baby."

"I'm glad you told me," said Bart slowly. "Because the people at Port England seem to think—"

"What do they think?" sharply. "That you've only been here 15 years."

She sat perfectly still. His heart was pounding like a broken piston, but he managed to make his voice calm.

"Because this is confidential, Mrs. Bayley, why can't we be candid?" He was jumping wildly to the conclusion which he now felt to be the true one. Learning toward her, he forced down her reserve with the question which must be answered. "Isn't it true that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter at all?"

An aching pause, a half second, a year, the woman searching into him. Then—

"Yes," a short agonized cry. She shook herself together with an effort of her strong will, but she was calm.

A wild triumph surged through Bart, and he would have flooded her with more reckless questions, but he heard her say calmly, "I've told you enough, Mr. Burgess."

Blood was surging in his cheeks. "Please don't think I was rude, Mrs. Bayley, but I had to know." Then he turned toward her and asked, "May I see Alice now?"

Easter Pageant Presented Today In Marietta, Ga.

MARIETTA, Ga., March 7.—Philathea class of the First Baptist church of Marietta will sponsor the Easter pageant entitled, "The Sword-Bearer and the Cross," Wednesday afternoon, March 8, in the church parlors, produced by local talent and directed by Mrs. George F. "The Store All Women Know"

Prominent Speakers Will Be Heard At B. and P. Women's Dinner Tonight

Atlanta Business and Professional Women's Club is celebrating the sixth annual observance of National Business Women's Week, which is primarily a public relations project, designed to strengthen co-operation between businesswomen and other civic and service organizations. Plans for the observance in this city are under the leadership of Miss Clara Bright, chairman of the public relations committee, and Mrs. James E. Fuller is president of the organization.

The organization sponsored two surveys into the problems of businesswomen which have resulted in some illuminating literature with relation to the subject. One of them carried out in collaboration with the University of Michigan, assembled data about the salaries of business and professional women; the relation of education to earnings, and proportion of women who support dependent families. A second survey will attempt to determine whether advancing years are a definite handicap to business and professional women.

The public relations dinner will be held at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday evening, March 8, and Dr. Grace H. Beardsley, of Goucher College, and T. J. Cauley, of Emory University, will be speakers. Dr. Beardsley speaks on "Our Public Relations—Annual Inventory and Forecast." Dr. Willis Sutton will talk on "Adult Vocational Guidance," over WGST Friday morning at 9:15 o'clock.

Kendall Weisler will speak at the vocational luncheon to be held at the Henry Grady hotel Saturday, March 11, at 1 o'clock. This subscription luncheon, to which members of business, professional, civic and other local groups have been invited, is open to those interested in vocational education and vocational guidance. Mrs. Flora S. Osburn, chairman of the committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Atlanta, is sponsoring the luncheon. The research committee is composed of Mrs. Osburn, Misses Maude Sewell and Maurya Graham, who will be assisted in receiving the guests by Miss Jennie Williams, Mrs. Forrest McKinney and Miss Sue Suttles, who have charge of arrangement of refreshments. The dinner will be made over Jackson 1021-W or Hemlock 6147-J, by Friday noon.

Miss Sadie Weinstein Weds Mr. Berman

GREENSBORO, Ga., March 7.—The marriage of Miss Sadie Weinstein and Harry Miller Berman, of Atlanta, was solemnized here Sunday at a high noon ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. Weinstein. The interior of the colonial home was decorated with similar, narcissi and white lilies. The improvised altar was composed of palms, starred with call lilies and tall candelabra held white tapers.

A musical program was rendered by Mrs. Harvey Amor and Mrs. Pierce Copeland. Mrs. Marnie Hixon played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" as the professional and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as the recessional.

Miss Helen Berman, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and was gowned in pink crepe ornamented with blue crepe trimmings. Miss Janet Weinstein, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and wore a becoming gown of pink crepe. Mrs. Weinstein was an usher, and the bridegroom was attended by Julian Miller Berman as best man. Mrs. M. J. Weinstein, mother of the bride, was the matron of honor, and wore a handsome gown of black lace.

The bride entered with her brother, J. H. Weinstein, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore an ivory lace wedding gown with a veil of tulle and lace. She wore ivory satin slippers and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Weinstein entertained at a reception at her home in honor of the bride and bridegroom, and the members of the wedding party. Mrs. Mary Berman, the bridegroom's mother, was gowned in black chiffon, and Mesdames Ethel Taylor, W. Childs and A. B. Adorne assisted in receiving. The bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip through the south and upon their return will make their home in Greensboro.

Honors Miss Zuber.

Mrs. Horace Collingsworth Jr. will entertain at luncheon today at 1 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lynn W. Hudson Jr., on McLynn in honor of Miss Jane Zuber, whose marriage will be an interesting event of the month. Gen., Mrs. McCoy Are Entertained At Luncheons

FORT M'PHERSON, Ga., March 7. Distinguished guests in military and civilian circles are Major General Frank Ross McCoy and Mrs. McCoy, of Washington, D. C., who are making a brief visit in Atlanta before going to their new station at Fort Bliss, Texas, where General McCoy will be in command. As former residents of the garrison during General McCoy's detail as commanding officer of the Fourth corps area, General and Mrs. McCoy made a host of admiring friends in the south and they were prominently identified with the cultural and social interests of the military and civilian contingents.

Motoring from Washington, where they have made their home since returning from the Orient, where General McCoy was an important member of the Manchurian commission, General McCoy and Mrs. McCoy arrived in Atlanta Monday and are at the Biltmore hotel. No official entertainments will mark their stay here, but they will be central figures at a series of small parties.

Mrs. McCoy was entertained at the luncheon given Tuesday by Mrs. Thomas Roberts at her quarters at the garrison. The table was centered with a bowl of spring flowers in tones of yellow, and covers were placed for Mrs. McCoy, Mesdames George H. Estes, Lewis Brown, Louis Sidney Morey, Walter F. Bates, Charles Lovelace Foster, Jack Ryan and the hostess.

Major General Edward L. King, commanding officer of the Fourth corps area, entertained Tuesday at a small luncheon at his quarters at the garrison complementing General McCoy. The luncheon followed an informal meeting of the staff of the Fourth corps in the commanding general's office at headquarters. General McCoy was exceedingly popular with officers of the corps and General King summoned the members of his staff for a informal meeting with his predecessor.

Lillian Mae Patterns.

LOVARI E FOR KIDDIES.

Pattern 2281.

Every little girl who is the least bit "fashionwise" about her frocks will want this one. . . to be made of the gayest cotton print ever. The youthful collar might be of white pique and two perky buttons add a smart note to the charming frock.

Notice the fetching slashed sleeves and pert bows, too. Another cute way to wear this frock is shown in small sketch.

Pattern 2281 may be ordered only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 8 requires 2-5/8 yards 36-inch fabric and 1-2 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted.

The Spring Fashion Book contains 32 colorful pages of lovely Paris-inspired models for every spring need. It shows how to be chic at every hour of the day. Every style is practical, and easy to make. There are models for larger figure, and pages of delightful junior and kids' styles. Lovely spring lingerie, and accessory patterns, too. Send for your copy. Price of catalog 15 cents.

INTENSELY SMART AND YOUTHFUL.

Today's model was carried out in a soft crinkly crepe silk print in yellowish-green with plain toning crepe.

Its dashing scheme is in keeping with the bright weather season. The neckline is generally becoming. And don't you like the pulled sleeves with their flared buttoned cuffs? Bias lines give flat slimness to the hips. The front and back panel effect lend height to the figure.

Plain grey crinkly crepe silk is lovely with yellow crepe contrast. Navy blue crepe is smart with white.

Style No. 592 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 3-1/2 yards 35-inch fabric with 11-1/4 yards 35-inch contrasting.

The new Fashion Magazine is ready! It is 48 pages! In addition to the latest styles for women and children, the book contains valuable beauty articles, some of which are illustrated by Norma Shearer and other famous stars. It is a book every reader should have and its price will be saved many times for the patterns are nominally priced and very economical in material requirements.

Price of book, 15 cents.

Counterfeiter Sentenced.

GREENEVILLE, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—James Henry Lewis, 22, of Mansfield, Ohio, was under sentence of three years in federal prison at Atlanta today on charges of passing a $10 counterfeit bill. He pleaded guilty to the charge in federal court here.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

An Immutable Law

The principle of the squeeze in Bridge is based on the simple proposition that one body cannot be in two places at the same time. Thus a player with two points of attack to defend, but with forces adequate to defend only one, may be compelled to see his defenses crumble at all points through the inexorable working of superior forces.

An appreciation and application of this principle permitted Mr. Thomas H. O'Neill, a member of the staff of the Associated Press, to brilliantly fulfill a Grand Slam contract in a recent Rubber game at the Deschamps Club in New York city.

O'Neill was one of those who reported my 150-0 record made with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz, something over a year ago. His interest in Bridge has always been keen, but his skill as a player has not been adequately recognized—maybe because of that anonymity with which a great news-gathering organization cloaks its faithful servants.

The hand which gave Mr. O'Neill the opportunity to make apparently one more trick than was in the cards was the following:

East Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

♠ K Q 10 8 3
♥ Q J 8 2
♦ 7 6 4
♣ 9

Mr. T. O'Neill
♠ A 9 5 4
♥ 10 9 8 4
♦ 8 7 6 5
♣ Q J 10

The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East South West North
2♠ Pass 2NT(1) Pass
3♠(2) Pass 4♠(3) Pass
6♠ Pass 7♠(4) Pass

1—West's choice of a response is close. After all, the hand down had redeemed his partner's overbid.

NANCY PAGE

Has Nancy a Good Plan for Work and Play?

BY FLORENCE La GANKE.

I would let her go out to play. She needs the fresh air and whatever sunshine there is. I'd have her come in to set the table at supper time. Then I'd try to get her into a quiet spot where the family chatter would not disturb her. I'd arrange a good light for studying.

About half past seven I'd let her read a story, listen to the radio. As she would be upstairs, taking a bath and getting ready for bed. I don't believe I would want her playing in the streets after supper. I know I'd have a hard time, because other girls and boys are out playing. But I think, really, she is safer in the house. And Friday night I think there would be a movie or a party at our house. Does that sound like sense?

When Nancy went to the P.-T. A. meeting she was much interested in discussion of the "Games for Children to Play." The games were planned for summer but most of them work just as well in winter. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your copy. Write clearly, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

"When she comes home from school."

One mother presented the problem. "I have a sister's son, who does not agree with the way I am bringing up my daughter, Clara. My sister wants me to put Clara to bed at 7 o'clock. Now Clara is 12 years old. She wants to play after supper, so this is what I have done. "She gets home from school at half past seven. She does her home work until supper time. She gets the table. We eat early, about 6 o'clock. Then I let her go out to play until 8 o'clock. She does not help with the supper dishes. Should she? And should she go to bed at 7? None of her playmates do."

The teacher asked for opinions. Nancy gave hers. "I am not exactly sure what I would do if my niece Joan were 12 instead of 7 or 8. But I think I would arrange her day like this:

"When she comes home from school."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: We have been married for seven years and just as you sometimes feel the wind change its direction I have felt my husband's affection change. He never talks except when it is necessary. He doesn't confide in me about his business any more. I love him and I am sick from worry over something that I can't put my finger on. However, I am reasonably sure there is another woman in the case. You can imagine how hard it is to fight an unknown and unseen enemy, and how maddening it is not to be able to discuss with your husband a subject that looms so large as life and death in your mind.

G. A. R.

Answer: A magazine writer recently wrote an article about the way to handle a woman among the "don'ts" which she enumerated.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED No. 225

"The opera-ballet season closed in Monte Carlo. Springtime and romance was in the velvet night. With Prince Alexis, I strolled the terrace when, suddenly I saw a man whom I could have sworn—do not laugh at my fancy, Roger—was your self! But that, I knew impossible. "So it WAS you, Patricia," cried Roger, "whom I thought I recognized in the beautiful Russian dancer!"

"Ah! If I had only known!" he said. "It would have been too late then, to change our destiny," replied the girl, sadly. "Prince Alexis proposed. I promised him my answer when I returned from England. I never saw him again. He was killed in a duel, in Paris, the devoted victim of a Russian exile whose title and fortune Alexis usurped."

"With the Red's code of communication in my possession, full instruction as to how I was to aid their cause and fully aware of the penalty I must pay if ever they discovered my double role, in various disguises I arrived in Leningrad. There, I was schooled in all that would be expected of me, a wicked mixture of lies, deceit, betrayal of men and even murder, if necessary."

"Eventually I was to be sent to Africa. Just before the Reds astounded Europe by striking their first blow against the British in the Dark Continent, I was a full-fledged spy, supposedly attached to the Red secret system. My first assignment was to get official information from the British war office and in doing so, twice I nearly lost my life."

For RHEUMATIC PAINS Quickest relief comes when you use a remedy already dissolved Instead of waiting for a solid pain remedy to dissolve in your stomach, get immediate relief from rheumatic or neuralgic pains, headaches, or aches due to colds by taking Capudine. Being liquid, Capudine's ingredients are already dissolved. Your system absorbs them at once. Delightful relief follows immediately. Will not upset stomach. 10c, 30c, 60c. Use Liquid CAPUDINE . . . It's already dissolved!

"Isn't it lovely" . . . "Isn't it smart" . . . "We simply ought to have that new bathroom." Listen to the comments as thrilled home-owners view the new "Standard" bathroom fixtures. Just a hint of what your family and guests would say if they saw them in your home. And what a relief it would be for you to know that the old-fashioned bathroom was out of your home forever.

Visit the nearest showroom. You'll be charmed by the beautiful, colorful bathroom pieces—all the same famous "Standard" high quality—at the lowest prices ever known. Time payments, too. Ask your Plumber for an estimate on installation—his advice and experience are at your service.
